

Economic Empowerment Services

YWCA Seattle | King | Snohomish is on a mission to eliminate racism, empower women and strengthen communities. Our Economic Empowerment department is dedicated to fostering equity by assisting those furthest from opportunity, particularly low-income BIPOC residents of King County. We focus on leveraging the unique strengths of job seekers as they journey through the job search and career planning process, helping them access good paying jobs that open doors to fruitful career pathways. We supplement these services with holistic wraparound supports, including housing resources, mental health assistance, access to healthcare, unemployment insurance application assistance, public benefits navigation and planning, and specialized resource referrals.

Career Development Centers:

YWCA Career Development Centers serve as gateways to Washington State's workforce system, offering an array of complimentary and free job search resources. This includes access to current job postings, computers and phones and other technology, job search workshops, personalized resume and cover letter assistance, career counseling, peer-supported job clubs, computer skills training, and opportunities to connect with employers through hiring events and job fairs.

In addition to core services, some locations offer on-site vocational training, financial literacy education, one-on-one financial coaching, community banking services, and ABE, ESL, and GED instruction. Some locations also offer wraparound services, including housing search assistance, healthcare access, youth development services, support groups, and working wardrobe clothing closets.
